A presentation of faith teachings
An interactive exploration of their implications for spiritual practice and social action
Group participation to identify learning

This one day conference convened by Sheffield Faiths Forum and SHEBEEN [Sheffield Black & Ethnic Minority Environmental Network] will provide the opportunity to:

- Learn about, and discuss the views of faith communities on our relationship with the environment [the earth], based on traditional teachings and current action in response to climate change
- Develop a faith perspective on the environment; identifying common ground and differences in approach

Who is this event for?

- Members of local faith groups
- Members of local environmental organisations
- Anyone interested in a faith perspective on the environment

What will happen after this event?

The outcomes from this event will form the basis for a further conference on Faith and the environment in conjunction with the public, business and 3rd sector to explore the implications for policy and decision making.
